| IMPLEMENTATION: PERFORMING ARTS |

At Baden Powell College the Performing Arts will encompass music, drama, dance, stage, instrumental and performance. The concepts of beat, rhythm, melody, harmony, form, tone colour, tempo, dynamics and style will be taught through activities in singing, listening, moving, playing, performing, responding, critiquing and creating. This will occur through:

- variety in choice of music, dance and performance material reflecting children's interests within their natural range
- variety of accompaniments demonstrating different styles, tempos, dynamics and tone-colour
- the encouragement of singing from graphic and formal notation
- the use of a variety of sound sources – recorded music, drum beats and percussion instruments for both creative and structured movement
- the use of mime, movement and dance as a medium of expression
- developing awareness of music, dance and performance elements
- exposure to different styles of music, performance and dance from other cultures
- interpret and discuss traditional and historical arts works using appropriate arts language
- encouraging children to play instruments, sing, dance and perform with confidence and correct technique
- performing to audiences
- encouraging creative response by providing a stimulating and nurturing environment
- the provision of experiences with various technologies

- the provision of opportunity to express themselves through composing and performing real, imaginary and abstract ideas

| IMPLEMENTATION: VISUAL ARTS |
|------------------------------------|

At Baden Powell College, the Visual Arts will encompass visual arts, media, visual communication, ceramics and photography.

The programs will ensure that:

- students engage in a variety of experiences from the different studios of art (painting, drawing threads and textiles, modelling, construction, printing and collage) involving tools, media, language and basic techniques appropriate to these studios.
- activities lead to an understanding of art elements such as colour, texture, shape, line, form and space, and art principles such as rhythm, tone, contrast, balance, movement, pattern and perspective.
- students engage in a variety of experiences focusing on ideas, skills, techniques processes, interpretation, response, presentation and critic catered for through a core and elective program.
- where possible, students will be engaged in a range of community and extra curricular visual arts opportunities that are available at any given time.
- activities will encourage students to create individual interpretations of a particular skill, concept and understanding
- students will be provided with learning experiences appropriate to their needs and be encouraged to develop according to their potential.
- students will be provided with experiences that reflect their own and other cultures by exposure to contemporary and historical works of art.
- I.C.T should be viewed as an additional tool in teaching and learning the Visual Arts. It may be used to enhance and support the Visual Arts program wherever possible.
- students' work will be celebrated and presented in a variety of ways.
- students will critically appraise art works based on art elements, styles and time.
- students will apply decision making skills to develop a personal style when creating art works.
